DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 28, 37-38, 45, 49, 52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Danielson et al. (US Pat. 6,049,813).

Regarding claims 28, 37-38, 45, 49, 52 Danielson et al. disclose in figures 29-31 a multifunctional electronic palmtop computer of the type which comprises, in a single box-like body, a keyboard 1196, a display 1180, a CPU, working storage and mass storage, a printer and a PCMCIA card interface 1206, further comprising a protective cover 1205 for the interface which is provided with locking means adapted to prevent direct accessibility to the interface, the cover requiring the intervention of a tool to release the means so as to allow access to the interface. The cover comprises means for preventing the PCMCIA cards from accidentally sliding out of the interface wherein the means for preventing accidental sliding comprise at least one raised portion which protrudes inside the cover and is adapted to ensure mechanical abutment against the PCMCIA cards wherein an opening is formed in the cover and a connector for connection to the PCMCIA card interface can be inserted through it. A seat 1179 which is adapted to contain a stylus to be used for the display 1180, the seat 1179 being formed in the cover.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 29-36, 39-44, 46-48, 50-51, and 53-54 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art fails to show that the locking means are actuated, on mutually opposite sides, by buttons, each button comprising a first component and a second component which are operatively coupled and are respectively arranged externally and internally with respect to a wall of the cover, the second component having a hook which abuts elastically against a retainer which protrudes rigidly from the body, the hook being disengageable from the retainer in contrast with an elastic means by virtue of a pressure applied by a user on the first component and transmitted to the second component or that the plug is provided with a protrusion which is rigidly fixed to the cover or that a read/write device for microchipcards which is arranged on the lower face of the body and can be accessed through a slot which has a flexible flap which can be folded only during the insertion of one of the microchip cards or that a paper containment compartment and a printer the compartment alternatively containing a roll of paper supported by a roll holder or a pack of continuous paper or that the cellular telephone is of the type known as GSM and comprises an electronic board which is arranged laterally to the paper containment compartment at the lower part of the body the board being arranged vertically or that the satellite positioning system comprises an electronic board which is arranged laterally with respect to the paper containment compartment at the lower part of the body, the board being arranged vertically.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Kung (US Pat. 6,718,182)) teaches modularized functionality enhancement for a cellular telephone.
